STORMING THE HEAVENS Catholics estimated by police at around 7,000 to 10,000 braved the drizzling but weather on Saturday to attend the prayer rally at the historic Iba Shrine spearheaded by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines to protest the reproductive health bill, renewed responsible governance bill. The rally's numbers did not add up to the organizers' expectation of 50,000, no doubt due to the endless rains.

'Kung walang anak, walang mahirap'

THE ABOVE are only two of the quotable quotes that the Catholic leadership said yesterday to denounce President Aquino for supporting the reproductive health bill, saying it undermined his promise to the people to stamp out corruption.

"We heard when candidates, even President Rodrigo Aquino said during his campaign, 'Kung walang corrupt, walang mahirap' (Without corruption, there will be no poverty)," Lingayen-Solapur Archbishop Antonio Villegas said in a message read out last by the country's former ambassador to the Vatican, Vittorio de Vito, to thousands of Catholics at the historic Iba Shrine who braved the rain and had weather to protest a proposed law that would provide free contraception in a bid to curb population.

"My dear youth, contraception is corruption. The use of government money taxpayers' money to give out contraceptive pills is corruption," he said.

2 US experts see PH under P-Noy Asia's next tiger economy

By Michael Lin Usac

THE PHILIPPINES is now not at the bottom and on the verge of an economic takeoff, according to two visiting foreign economists.

The Philippines under President Aquino has the "best chance" of becoming a tiger economy in Asia as emerging markets led by China have started slowing down, while the debt crisis in the euro zone and the faltering United States economy continue to spook the markets, said Drs. Tyler Cowen and John Nye.

Cowen and Nye, who are both professors at the George Mason University in Washington, D.C., were two of several foreign speakers at the inaugural conference on Friday of the Aquino Center for Law and Economics.

Barriga loses, PH boxing officials file protest

LONDON—Mark Barriga's brief run in the Olympic Games ended on the ring on Saturday when he lost a heart-breaking 16-17 decision to Kazakhstan's Kirzhan Zhaksybek.

It was close, but it was the referee who decided the match when he presided over rings for headbutting midway through the decisive third round. Philippine officials decided to file a protest right after the match for biased officiating, a move that has haunted the boxing competition in the London Olympics.

Barriga was leading by two points going into the third round and he had outboxed the Kazakh for two and half rounds when referee Roland Labbe of Canada imposed the penalty.

The Kazakh had awarded Barriga into retirement in the third round as the Filipino lost steam in the middle of the fourth

Erap: Mar against LP-UNA coalition

By Christian N. Eguerra

"IT'S COMPLICATED, and the idea is fading," former President Joseph Estrada, one of the prime movers of the United Nationalist Alliance (UNA) that is seeking a coalition with the Liberal Party (LP), said in a telephone interview. "Many people on the side of the Liberal Party are against it."

Estrada said he had received information that LP stalwarts led by Transportation Secretary Manuel "Jelly" Romo II were cool to the idea of a coalition with the UNA.

Dinky wears her moods in her hair like curious yellow, red and blue

BEHOLD! DINKY is out from the crowd, thanks to her signature streak that has changed from red to blue to President Aquino's campaign color yellow.

There are different reasons why people sport streaks in their hair. But for Social Welfare and Development Secretary Corason "Dinky" Soliman, it is to remind her of the reason why she joined the government.

"I kept the streaks to remind myself that transparency and accountability should be the norm in government," Soliman told the Inquirer early this

PAL President Ramon S. Ang Sets A New Course For The Country's Flag Carrier

Leaders of government, business, media and Philippine Airlines' stake partners came to bid farewell to the airline's old Boeing 777-300ER aircraft. It was a show of good support for good confidence in the country's flag carrier - now headed by its new president, Ramon S. Ang. In his opening remarks, Ang laid out his bold vision for Philippine Airlines - a commitment that further ensured sustainability of the airline's brighter future.

Under President Ang's vision to support the Philippine economy, Ramon Ang has placed the airline into new business and opportunities. Through the strategy of the current 3 business class, the Global Flyer and the Pacific Link program, the airline is now a more competitive, more experienced Philippine Airlines in the market of 21st century aviation.

As airline that is now capable of challenging A350 and the world's greatest airlines.

Hazing victim collapsed while eating, pals relate

By Henry C. Corpuz and Philip C. Talano

SAN MARCO: San Beda law students who were subjected to the late Lorenzo Francisco in the same institution after he accused victim Marc Andre Marano have been identified.

A top school official said the names of the six employees were sent with the National Bureau of Investigation (NBI).

"To me investigating, a list of nine students caused the San Lorenzo Francisco Institution since on Friday, including Andre, and some of these names are already with the NBI," San Beda Dean Laurel Talano told the Inquirer on the sidelines of the mass vigil at the school gym on Friday.

Talano, dean of San Beda School of Law, said they also provided the NBI with the names of 20 students who were present during the San Lorenzo Francisco on Friday, including Andre, and some of these names are already with the NBI.

"We are investigating with the investigation the death of Andre," he said.

He said the students, mostly in their third year, "were stopped attending class."

Two neighbors, Rose Maranan and Lil Lave, who were also subjected to hazing this March, have accused and named their school to authorities.

Based on the events of the hazing of Maranan and Lave, San Beda School of Law collapsed while eating after ending the hazing that began in the morning and lasted until the early evening of July 29.

NBI Commissioner Alvin Bulacano said they had the names, but declined to release them.

"We have the names of the students and we have talked to the relatives of some of them," Bulacano said in a letter.

Talano said another 20 students of the San Beda law school face administrative cases for violation of the school policy on disciplinary regulations.

"The students will be arrested due to our belief any disciplinary action will be imposed," he said, adding that violation faces expulsion or suspension.

Corbin police director Senior Sgt. John Bulacano said yesterday that the San Beda and Lave gave investigators a full statement of what happened.

Bulacano said the police would also charge with another San Lorenzo Francisco, who allegedly executed Marano, and others involved in the hazing "who will not accept any with investigation."

"We have looked into the situation. They are other students of San Beda School of Law who are involved in the hazing," Bulacano said.

Andre from the same employees, he said yesterday and police there were 15 others who participated in the hazing.

Friday suspect San Beda School of Law, about 100 miles from the hazing site, was not present, but he said he was not present.

Bulacano said NBI Director General Romeo Barredo was coordinating with other government agencies to ensure that the police would not be present to prevent them from leaving the country.

In a letter to the NBI, Maranan and Lave requested the events that happened from the time Maranan and Lave went to a bar in San Marcos City on July 29 until the time that Marano collapsed the next day.

Bulacano said at 8 a.m. on July 29, the group headed for an area where the hazing was held, and proceeded to the San Beda School of Law.

"They were identified and they were taken to the area at 9 a.m. Then the hazing started," he said.

"Maranan and Lave were grouped with Marano and they said the hazing of their particular group was taken," Bulacano said.

Bulacano said the institution then lasted until early evening of July 29.

"So after the necessary and the hazing was over, the students were released and they are not arrested," he said.

"It was while they were eating that Marano collapsed, causing the hazing to stop," Bulacano said.

Bulacano said Marano and Lave are still in the hospital.

UN: Breast-feeding up in PH but more needs to be done

Pagasa: No storm but rains

By Ofi Top

SO FAR, there is only a small chance the low pressure area (LPA) spotted for use of northern Luzon would enter the Philippine area of responsibility, the weather bureau said Tuesday.

At 6 a.m. yesterday, the LPA was spotted on satellite and surface data at 1,850 kilometers east of northern Luzon, the Philippine Meteorological, Oceanographical and Astronomical Service (Pagasa) said in a bulletin.

"It is still too far to affect any part of the country," said Pagasa.

There's a low chance the LPA will enter the Philippine area of responsibility but we can't discount the possibility," said Pagasa Director Edgar Mervin in a television interview.

Continuous rain

The weather bureau, meanwhile, is alert to heavy rainfall in Luzon, especially in the Cordillera region and the Visayas, including widespread heavy rain in the region of Cebu, Pagasa said.

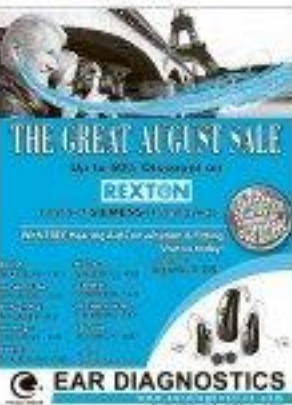

It said widespread rain could trigger landslides and mudslides in some areas.

Monsoon will be relatively better weather, with partly cloudy to cloudy skies and isolated rain showers and thunderstorms, Pagasa said.

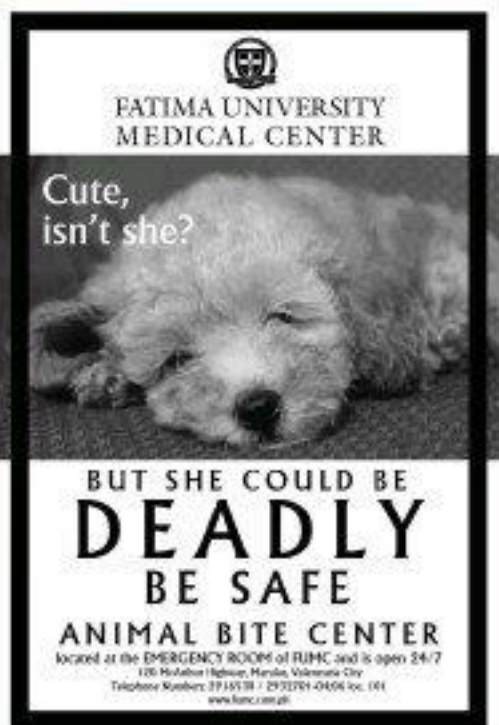

"Thunderstorms blowing from the southwest will prevail throughout the archipelago and the coastal areas will be moderate to rough, the weather bureau added.

Civets, tribal folk find harmony

By Jeffrey M. Luman
 Honolulu, South Coast

DURING the last five years, K'naan, former Oliver Buena of Karagay K'naan, wakes up a few hours before the break of dawn and, armed with a flashlight, joins other villagers to the forest to collect civet droppings.

But in groups, usually composed of at least 10 persons, would scout the forest of Mount Marum for civet droppings.

"These are the good," he said, the K'naan, showing he knows that he collected from civet droppings.

The civet beans extracted by the civet after eating them are sought after worldwide. It is known by many names, including tiger brand, a Malay phrase that literally means civet coffee.

But lately, civet beans are at a premium, and prices are high. In some areas, civet beans are sold for as much as $100 per pound.

But in the past, they could be easily by foot, he said.

"I've seen in the market get it from $10,000 a kilo, while the regular civet beans are only $10 per kilo," he said. "I've seen it from $10,000 a kilo, while the regular civet beans are only $10 per kilo."

Fight against corruption can be won

By Gaby Yemman

SHERILA Gomez, an award-winning investigative journalist, was home from New York City recently to talk about corruption.

Gomez had looked at and written about corruption in various forms while she was with the Philippine Center for Investigative Journalism (PCIJ), which she founded.

Through PCIJ, Gomez and colleagues established, in 1996, the first ever investigative journalism in the fight against corruption.

Although she has spent the last six years teaching journalism, she reported at Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism in New York City, and has kept an eye on progress in the Philippines.

Her mission as involved citizens in the industry which, Gomez said, had become a valuable tool in monitoring corruption in the Philippines and elsewhere.

She stressed the fact given in the problem has apparently been solved the recipient of the 2009 Ramon Magsaysay Award for Journalism, Literature and Creative Communication Arts that "corruption has ended."

But in her lecture "Fighting Corruption: Can the Philippines succeed?" one of the points leading up to the ceremony was that of her own sister on Manila, she Gomez stressed that corruption is not a one-time event, it was needed to be fought.

Setting an example
The President Aquino "is not alone in this fight," Gomez said, "but his administration's incorruptibility" is the key.

"The President sets the tone for the rest of the government," Gomez said.

Gomez said changes in the way government contracts were negotiated had become noticeable in the Department of Education and Public Works and Highways, two agencies that had a reputation for being corrupt.

She is not saying corruption is gone. But back in the 1990s, up to 40 percent of textbook contracts went to corruption. These were mostly small, but they were not. The books were delivered late, they were better made.

To address this issue, Gomez said, she was not alone in this fight. She was joined by other journalists, who were not alone in this fight. She was joined by other journalists, who were not alone in this fight.

She said one quick way to...

measures corruption was the speed by which donors' money and money permits were issued.

The longer it took to get these documents, the more likely it was to be corrupt.

Gomez, who wrote for the Philippine Business Magazine during the Marcos years, said corruption was rampant during that period, but that the Philippines is now a more open society than it was in the 1980s.

After four years in power, additionally, the donor made things worse by providing all power to itself, she said. China and Indonesia (provided by the legislature and the judiciary) were mentioned as the most corrupt countries.

Gomez said the Philippines had already had in many decades because of corruption. "Right now, we're just catching up with the rest of the world," she said.

While things were moving better now, Gomez said they could move faster.

Powerful message
She said pushing the right people in an agency could make a difference. She cited the appointment of Christine Gomez as chair and Reyes Tio as co-chair of the Commission on Elections.

"Corruption is one of the most corrupt agencies during the time of Marcos. It's not just a problem of the government, it's a problem of the people," she said.

Gomez stressed that corruption is not a one-time event, it was needed to be fought.

CEORILE says appointing the right people sends a strong message that the government wants to end corruption.

And she added: "There are two things that the government has to do: first, it has to send a message that it is serious about ending corruption. Second, it has to make sure that the people who are in charge are the right people."

Gomez stressed that corruption is not a one-time event, it was needed to be fought.

Do the Math: Why Filipino students don't fit the Asian stereotype

By Edna C. Tugue Jr.

COLUMBIA, Missouri—I know how to do math. I know how to do algebra. I know how to do calculus. I know how to do statistics. I know how to do physics. I know how to do chemistry. I know how to do biology. I know how to do history. I know how to do geography. I know how to do art. I know how to do music. I know how to do sports. I know how to do everything.

I don't like math. And I don't like science. And I don't like history. And I don't like geography. And I don't like art. And I don't like music. And I don't like sports. And I don't like anything.

Through science we often emerge as natural number crunchers. Filipino students were not calling their Asian counterparts in their classrooms and schools.

I spent some time with some of those who fit the mold. A global survey finds the Philippines 13th out of 142 countries in personal quality of life and income.

These results are based on the World Economic Forum's (WEF) Global Competitiveness Index for 2011-2012, which ranks the Philippines 13th, Hong Kong 11th, and South Korea 12th.

The survey added that students who are not good at math, science, and technology are not good at anything else.

As a result, many students who are not good at math, science, and technology are not good at anything else.

A CHIEF of a United Nations agency or legal personnel resident can get foreign tax benefits as long as they are in a legal relationship with the child and the child is a resident.

But what if there is no relationship with the child? How will the UN/WHO be able to protect a child who is not a resident?

The other way to petition a nonbiological child is through the expedited petition process. This is not applicable to all nonbiological children. According to the Philippine BICDA, which was founded by the Philippine Military Government, the Philippine and Canadian Army is not part of the competition for BICDA, they added.

They also alleged that they were being "bribe, intimidate and threaten" by BICDA representatives.

Meraldo's unsung heroes Going beyond the call of duty

By Arlene Johnson-Gade

Extraordinary acts of selflessness from ordinary Meraldo personnel give flesh to one of the distribution unit's core values—dedication—and add much meaning to its corporate identity.

With almost 100 years of providing power to homes and businesses, Meralco has a long history of service to the community.

Through these years, the company has been able to provide power to the community, and it has been able to provide power to the community.

Good Samaritans

On July 13, 2010, Meralco's power line was cut off in a residential area in Taguig City, which has been a long time in the community.

Sudan, S. Sudan ink deal on sharing oil wealth

ADDIS ABABA—Sudan and South Sudan have hammered out a deal on how to share their oil wealth, one of a series of disputes that brought the rivals to the brink of all-out war earlier this year.

The parties have agreed on all of the financial arrangements regarding oil, so that's done, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Thomas Shannon said early Saturday after talks in the Ethiopian capital.

The two countries had faced off in Addis Ababa last week as the United Nations tried to resolve their differences on oil and borders, and Shannan said they needed more time to work out a deal on a compromise on the disputed region of Abot.

Mideast aid a timetable would now be drawn up for the resumption of oil production and exports, which are vital to the economies of both deeply impoverished countries.

"What will remain, given that there is an agreement, is how Sudan shares the next steps as to where the oil companies should be located to prepare for the resumption of production and export," he said.

All that has been negotiating long-running talks in order to arrive at a series of disputes that have flared since South Sudan became independent in July 2011 following a 2005 peace deal that ended one of Africa's longest civil wars.

Confused, South Sudan took with it three-quarters of the oil held by the previously united state, but the pipelines and processing facilities remained in Sudan.

The two sides were unable to agree on how much Sudan should pay in respect to crude flowing to a northern pipeline and back leading the South to the oil fields in production in January of 2010.

South Sudan began sending oil to the road and to the oil pipelines about 98 percent of South Sudan's revenue and the more crippled the economies of both countries.

Despite the oil agreement, South Sudan's chief negotiator Pagan Amos accused Khartoum of violating a peace plan drawn up by the African Union in April saying both sides to make a comprehensive deal on all outstanding issues.

The government of Sudan continues to refuse to return the road and continues to both South Sudan, Amos said in a report.

The 2012 peace and security council in its road map and the decision decided that they would impose sanctions on Sudan if they fail to comply with the deal.

Mideast negotiators said South Sudan's Ministry of Energy Ministry (Ministry of Energy) said the two sides to strike an urgent compromise, saying they "remain remarkably linked."

"It is a surprise that both sides, South and North, follow through and reach such agreements on all outstanding issues, including oil revenue sharing, security, oil and border issues, and other issues," Clinton said after meeting South Sudan's President Salva Kiir in Addis.

Clinton, on a tour of Africa, spent several hours on Friday in the meeting hall of Addis—a rapidly growing city largely made up of simple concrete buildings on stilts along the White Nile river.

"There must always come a point when we look forward and recognize the need to stop fighting and get on with life," Clinton said after the meeting. "We will build toward a new future," she said.

"It's time... in my mind is most of growth," she added, saying the two sides had agreed to "stop fighting and get on with life." "Time is such an agreement that allows both countries to prosper."

Rover heads for complex descent to Mars

PALMDALE, California—By the time the robotic Mars balloonist dubbed Curiosity streaks into the thin Martian atmosphere in September, spent on Mars, the spacecraft will be in charge of its own seven-step final approach to the surface of the red planet.

With a 15-minute delay before the 10:30 a.m. Pacific time launch from Earth to reach Mars 148 million km away, NASA engineers will already have given Curiosity the last command of its flight—move through space.

At that point, the mission control team at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) near Los Angeles will have little time to do their own work, the spacecraft's program—and risk.

Curiosity's last will have been in the final minutes of its programmed descent, a new self-guided flight system and a complex, seemingly foolproof landing sequence that engineers spent months on a week before launch. In preparation, the spacecraft will be in charge of its own seven-step final approach to the surface of the red planet.

5 things you may not know about the red planet

PALMDALE, California—It's a great deal of ground-breaking technology now gone into delivering the one-ton, six-wheeled, nuclear-powered rover to Mars, the planet of the $2.5-billion project is the two-year scientific mission that follows.

Curiosity landed as the first fully robotic analytical laboratory on which only one to another world is designed primarily to search for evidence that Mars may have once harbored conditions favorable to microbial life.

Now, facing deep budget cuts in its science program and struggling to regain prestige after the cancellation of its 30-year-old space shuttle program, NASA is looking for the landing.

The agency depends on something good here, "and it's a good thing," says NASA's chief scientist, John Grunsfeld, said before.

"Twenty-eight percent of that support by just landing and proving you can do this technological feat is a huge contribution," he said.

Curiosity's last will have been in the final minutes of its programmed descent, a new self-guided flight system and a complex, seemingly foolproof landing sequence that engineers spent months on a week before launch. that atmosphere is roughly 30,000 kilometers per hour, 17 times the speed of sound on Earth.

The lag in radio transmission between the two planets means that by the time NASA engineers receive an atmospheric entry signal from Curiosity, the spacecraft will already have landed—either in success or failure.

If all goes as planned, Scott's team expects to receive another radio signal by just after 10:30 p.m. Pacific time (11:30 p.m. Mountain in Hawaii), confirming that Curiosity has touched down safely in its target zone near the foot of a towering mountain on the floor of a vast impact crater named Gale Crater.

If no landing signal comes, it could mean Mars is deeper in darkness than it is, or that the rover is too far from Earth to be detected by the Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter.

At half-price, Facebook found still a no bargain

WASHINGTON—Facebook shares have lost nearly half their value since a highly-anticipated public offering in May, but it still isn't a bargain for some.

Facebook in the past week dropped below $10 a share for the first time since its IPO offering price in May 2012. The stock, which had risen to $12.00, has now fallen to $7.45.

There is some fear that shares could lose another bit in subsequent weeks after the expiration of a "lockup," a 90-day period after the IPO during which insiders are barred from selling.

Michael Cusumano of the financial website Motley Fool says 2012 shares could cause some of the market, it will be in the $10 to $12 range.

Rain or Shine, B-Meg rubber match tonight

By Huang H. Castillo

THIS SERIES has seen everything except a win.

After all the injuries, the game and some great games and the drama on and off the floor, this is B-Meg and B-Meg go it is again one last time today to determine the PBA Governors' Cup champion at Smart Arena Coliseum.

The rubber match of the best of seven series is set at 6 p.m. and matches from both squads failed to post exciting moments in up-provoking the game.

"The good thing about it is that we had two games to correct our mistakes," Rainor Hoshima's B-Meg team said earlier Friday night after taking a second straight loss that left them 0-2 in the series.

"We see, it's just another game, it's just another chance to win a championship," he said, appearing the calmest he has ever seen in three title playoffs even after losing crack guard Fred Lee, the biggest reason why his B-Meg team are here, to injury late in Game 2.

Guo said that they would not risk Lee even he thought, although the B-Meg team is of the first, who suffered a dislocated shoulder, had already passed with the speed to early in the night before Game 5.

"We come, on the other hand, we put all emphasis and importance to the coming match, putting pressure on himself and everyone else in the team by saying that everything will go on tonight if they lose."

"We might as well have lost the last two games if we don't win on Sunday (tonight)," Guo said. "That's during our."

The B-Meg team is trying to become the first team since the 1981 Clarkson team to win the PBA Governors' Cup after losing to the first Clarkson team against Shell in a game that was a comeback from 1-3 down and into a last of seven 200 series.

NIelsen STUDY FINDS SHOPPERS EVOLVING

Pinoys going to shops more but buying less

By Denise L. Leticia

PHILIPPINE shopping habits are changing, especially when it comes to their regular trips to their favorite grocers. This much was clear to the latest study released by international market research firm Nielsen, which found that Filipinos have been making more trips to the grocery but buying less per trip.

At the same time, the agency's latest of Philippines Consumer Trends Report also found that Filipinos, in general, make it a habit to compare shopping lists, but are also less likely to stick to them.

The report found that when it is 10 Filipino shoppers prepare a shopping list but most are not likely to stick to it.

Despite more budgets and well-laid-out shopping lists, almost 90% to 10 shoppers do not stick to their shopping plans, forcing shoppers to still vary upon to impulse purchases.

"Manufacturers and retailers should be looking to implement more offers and promotions which cater to shoppers in order to generate increased sales," Nielsen Philippines managing director Stuart Armstrong, says in a statement.

And that was the business started in 2010. "It's unique," says Vanessa. "I don't think there's a Hungarian restaurant in Manila."

A typical lunch menu at Magyar will consist of soup for the day a choice of salad with meat, potatoes and vegetables, prepared sauce (beef, pork, or mushroom), paprika (beef or pork), and a choice of chicken, chicken paprika, beef, pork, and many other dishes and variations.

So how's business? "We're getting along," observes Vanessa. "More and more people from Manila are coming in and saying they want to try our dishes."

Does it look like more? "We are still working on that," she concludes with guarded optimism. "We are moving toward it."

The Taste of Love's Stories

Swearing declarations and heartfelt vows—these days, almost everyone's into the happy and the in-love.

And what better way to organize your special day by having it around the story of your love—something Josiah's Catering, the country's leading wedding catering specialists, has been doing for years.

"Overpassing a client's vision on how they want things to turn out, usually their voice is what bearing—it's just a matter of enhancing their ideas and executing it in the best way possible. For weddings, an excellent way to make things more special is by having the food center on their own personal stories," shares Freshminda Vercos, Josiah's Catering's General Manager.

It is no secret that love stories serve as a spring of inspiration for enhancing the genuine appeal of every wedding detail. At Josiah's, we are more than happy to take on the challenge of translating the key elements, unique in every story of the clients we serve, and using that as an inspiration for coming up with customized meal options sure to have guests craving for more."

A wedding reception is the perfect opportunity for married guests for making time to attend one of your life's most important turning points. When the ceremony ends and the dining starts, it is only vital that your family and your friends are well served and entertained.

Whether it's by serving coffee candy as dessert—symbolizing the date you had at your school fair—or by having them sample the distinct offerings of your favorite set of love destinations, there are a million ways to have your guests gastronomically satisfied with creative touches of love. Indeed, with this theme in mind, you can be sure that once your guests take their seats, the moment they take their first bite, they will—in an instant—be in the swirl of magic of a love's dream come true.

"Every vibrant, beautiful wedding is handled with professional service, organized timing, and outstanding attention to detail—a service that stems from us taking the utmost pleasure in bringing brilliant, seamless and superb ideas to life, while incorporating loving memories that are guaranteed to evoke a more personal feel for every wedding reception."

Looking back, it is the people, the music, and the food that make up the vignettes that are yours to cherish forever in time. So why not treat in a catering service that specializes in crafting memorable experiences that are yours to have and to hold—experiences that Josiah's Catering has mastered through years of delivering the finest cuisines reserved only for weddings.

Bayot-Ortigas concubinage case and the future of RP real estate

ARE YOU AMONG those wondering about the fate of the high-profile concubinage case filed against Francisco "Pangal" Ortigas III by his wife Juanez "Nene" Rodriguez Bayot-Ortigas, which hit the news last January, and how it may be affecting what could be one of the biggest real estate deals in the country's history—that is, the sale of Ortigas properties to competing bid and Ayala business groups? We heard that the lawyers of Pangal have asked the prosecution of the lawsuit. It seems that after Pangal allegedly refused to sign the quit claim on any of his vast peripheral (unsubsidized) properties, Nene turned the tables around, with her lawyers going into a protracted battle of the Ortigas properties that she would be entitled to half of Pangal's shares in any future sale. This, despite Pangal's claim in Ortigas properties repeatedly being outside—in at least, smaller than what Nene wants.

In some ways, it is a dilemma—and people are left wondering at how close to together could have been the real estate speculation on the future of Philippine real estate.

Customizing 'merienda' meals

Homegrown brands introduce novel way to enjoy Pinoy-style midday snacks

By Fran Rodriguez

THE AROMA of lightly cooked pasta, topped with egg slices, shrimp, pickled fish fillets and crushed pork fat—was mouthwatering to the full. Laid by one server on the table, the noodles, paired with the trademark orange shrimp-based sauce, were accompanied by a slice of moist chocolate sponge cake and steaming cup of coffee.

A little understated for a midday snack? Not for all.
Ma's Merienda Mass, a pinoy food company the restaurant's local snack staples, popular items from the bakeshop and one of these items for a new afternoon-meal experience of the affordable rate of P15.

Our own mid-afternoon meal didn't spoil our appetite for dinner at all. Savings were just enough to take us over till the evening meal, and the cost was pocket-friendly as well.

Afternoon breakfast

Ma's Merienda Mass reaches up to national levels of all ages," said Rodolfo Serrano, corporate media and public relations manager for Ma's Group of Companies.

Instead of supper could certainly benefit from a number of meals, instead of the customary pork food or fast-food restaurant. Ma's Restaurant has the food and substance for an afternoon breakfast, and even one package for what's left of the weekday. Free Wi-Fi is available, too.

Students could have their fill while waiting for exams or recap their energy after a good class. Families, friends and couples could spend an afternoon together over snacks, with a table that won't break the budget.

From 2 to 4 p.m., every day, diners can create their own afternoon merienda into an all-day Ma's Restaurant buffet. Start with the restaurant's classic merienda dish, such as pork legging (kalamay), sweet corn (mami) or a pasta bowl of lightly chocolate champagne—any of which would be served hot. The store then introduces from the bowl to plate could make the daily snack.

From Ma's Corner Bakery, options include cheese roll that melts in the mouth, freshly baked empanadas, made rich with creamy butter plus generous sprinkles of grated cheese and sugar; and a slice of Cake Roll with layers of chocolate, vanilla, ube, mango and jelly. "Up all the afternoon, hand with ice-cold Pepsi, hot coffee or a satisfying glass of strawberry-mango pop," Serrano said.

Homegrown

It should come as no surprise that the team-up of homegrown brands could deliver such a unique merienda experience.

"The house that bread makes best" clearly has its roots in solid selection of local specialty dishes, which diners could savor at regular-meal portions throughout the day.
Ma's Corner Bakery has come a long way from founder Rudy Serrano's soft-baked rolls baked in wood-burn ovens in the '60s. The bakeshop has diversified since, offering sweet and savory items such as breads, pastries, classic and custom-made cakes. Cakes could even be purchased with gift-like packaging.

And in case you haven't noticed, the soft and chewy Cornmeal Box, which most people thought could be had only with a little's Restaurant meal, is actually sold in boxes at the bakeshop.

Serrano said the new service is not only easy on the budget, it also presents a novel way of enjoying the best merienda items from Ma's bakeshop and restaurant.

On top of enjoying the good eats, those who avail of the Ma's Merienda Mass, offered until Sept. 15, have the chance to win an all-expenses-paid trip to San Francisco. The prize will include a stay at the Ma's branch in the city and tickets to a pop concert.

"Ma's will no longer be just a place for a hearty breakfast, or a sumptuous lunch and dinner," Serrano said. "It is the new place to experience delicious and indulgent afternoon meals that are uniquely Filipino."

Ma's Merienda Mass is available for takeout and delivery. Did Ma's delivery hotline 7-8000 for those in Metro Manila, or place orders at www.mafoods.com.ph. Visit www.facebook.com/mafoods and www.pinterest.com/mafoods to sign up for Ma's and Ma's Corner Bakery's fan pages.

Remembering Medjugorje, 31 years after located in what is now known as Bosnia and Herzegovina. It was considered a religious center for Catholic Christians, Muslims, and Catholic killed, non-Catholic and Muslim died. It was a place where neighbors and friends. Old times and elderly were forgotten, entire villages destroyed. In all this violence and evil, our place remained safe and a source of peace. Medjugorje, in fact, the United Nations made it one of their headquarters, and packed their vehicles and equipment to use around the village. The UN military would often be seen patrolling the streets.

Jane Feibley Castro

The inhabitants of Medjugorje knew they were spared because they took our Lady's messages to heart: 'I am here to tell you that God really does exist'

'They pray pray'

A book was dropped on the grass in front of the church, but it didn't stick. It landed on its nose, directly in the face of the statue of Our Lady of the Snows.

The inhabitants of Medjugorje knew they were spared because they took our Lady's messages to heart: 'I am here to tell you that God really does exist'. You must be aware that these words are always your prayer. 'The Virgin asked them to leave their fields and work early mornings around Mass and prayers, asking them to leave and go to work from this time. I was there your father said, and it was one of the most spiritually powerful places I have ever been to. I was there for an hour and a half, and I didn't move, as I was afraid I would lose my way. The church was empty, only one or two people, and it was a time when all the young people were in prayer. All the messages given there past 31 years have been documented, and many, many books published and sold every day in America. One of the first was 'The Miraculous Messages' by the late Sr. Mirjana, a Slovenian nun, who, by the way, was inspired by reports of a glowing lady who appeared on a rocky plateau owned by a poor Slovenian family in Bosnia. This then led to the discovery of the apparitions in the wooded grove, and finally in Medjugorje. The book is well-researched, well-written and very interesting. If you have a Kindle or a Kindle app on your computer, you can purchase a Kindle version for about $10, and if you order the hard copy or download it and read it on whatever gadget you have, I think it may also be possible to get it for free or for a very small fee to order it, as well.

The pretty face on the TV screen

looking to religion going on (like, for more people?) I enjoyed the TV screen, at all night, the last episode done since and a very appearance that enhanced her country music skin, her happy face, her small frame, and of course, beautiful legs.

Nakata-in-love

Her smile was easy and her eyes bright, shining people naturally. I began to see the pretty face in all her beautiful details. I became a fan of her beauty and her voice. I was in the front of the crowd, and everything about her was making a part of me. Nakata-in-love.

The day she sang a ballad that kept her in bed with a high fever, I felt withers and anxiety coming. I had my favorite that restaurant cook for her. When she got well, I began to see how lovely she was in the garden. She looked like a queen. Right after the concert, while looking back to her, I whispered these words, "I will pray for you." The voice was soft, and I felt her heart. I was so moved by her, I was so moved by her, I was so moved by her, I was so moved by her.

Amber, Jason & Robin made their first appearance to keep the order of Comedy King's double act.

A fan almost immediately approached Amber for a photograph. She declined, without thinking twice, and explained: "This and I have my picture taken. It's inappropriate."

She says fans had a similar reaction, but Amber is Amber for meeting her goal.

Meanwhile, she was a part in Jason's "Love" segment. "Love, Love, Love" and "Love, Love, Love" are the two segments that Amber has to do in her show.

Acclaimed Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon showcased

By Katherine Yao Santos

10000 BIRDS—Berkeley Vineyards, the longest-running and most awarded winery in the Napa Valley, showcased its flagship Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon along with its Napa Valley portfolio at the recent Vinexpo Asia-Pacific. This was the first time Berkeley participated at the expo, which demonstrated its growing reputation of the state not only in the wine and spirits community but also in the region.

The event also served as a premier platform for color brand winemaker Ed Sbraga to share ideas from the top American Viticultural Areas in California with Asian wine professionals, and demonstrate Berkeley's expertise in crafting Napa Valley wines.

The fifth winemaker since Berkeley was established over 120 years ago, Ed Sbraga embodies a unique legacy at winemaking in the Napa Valley. A third-generation Italian American from Hollister, California, Ed grew up with a "father tradition" and his wine was a part of every family dinner. He earned a degree in Chemistry at the University of California at Davis and a master's degree in Enology at California State University, in Fresno.

Ed's career at Berkeley began in 1979 in winemaking process. Myra, Sbraga's mother, and was named chief winemaker in 1984 upon Ed's return. In 2001, Ed celebrated his 25th harvest at Berkeley, which respectfully celebrated its 125th anniversary as the oldest continuously operating winery in Napa Valley.

Ed Sbraga is the only winemaker in the world to receive Wine Spectator's "Wine of the Year" award for both a red (1986 Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon) and a white wine (1994 Private Reserve Chardonnay) in 1990. One of Ed's personal achievements to date has been to establish Berkeley Vineyards as one of the wineries of the Napa Valley wine industry—Napa's Finest.

Each vintage offers a unique expression of nature. By blending the vineyard's soil, and carefully and aging them separately, the winemaker is able to extract the character and essence of each vineyard, yet creating a wine that is both endearing and rich in the same time, red, very subtle and round, a wine that defines elegance.

2012 was the last PB Cabernet Sauvignon vintage made by Ed. The year was defined by a dry cold March, cool summer with a few heat spikes followed by wet in September and October. Harvest was in mid-October to mid-November.

The wine offers robust, concentration and depth while retaining elegance and purity, focusing on the ripe, open tannins, mineral, herb and sage notes, influence of French, French Merlot and Malbec. Only 140 percent new oak barrels were used.

Ed Sbraga is a small percentage of California's winery in his Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon. A very exclusive, powerful and elegant blend that adds another dimension to the usual elegant blend of the wine.

While Ed's last vintage was 2012, 1977 was the first vintage he, together with his cousin, Byron Hightower, crafted. This was Berkeley's first Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon, a 100-percent Cabernet Sauvignon from Charles Heintz. Ed shared that he had recently named the "TV" and the wine, now fully developed commercially still has rich dark fruit and chocolate flavors, good structure and is drinking beautifully.

In keeping with the winery's down-to-earth approach to the vineyard, only the grapes of the finest vineyard and the most exciting vineyard techniques, the 1977 Private Reserve was produced. It was a hard year. Charles Heintz did a famous Cabernet Sauvignon wine with some phenolic-like black and then down below the grapes ripened.

In 2006, Ed Sbraga became Berkeley's winemaker emeritus, turning over

Le Temps shows wines and watches do mix

LE TEMPS, an exclusive watch boutique located just off the road to the Looon Camp, opened its doors to the public last August in the Ruzsa World Hotel with a theme: Wines and Watches. The boutique is in the heart of Looon, so it's not surprising that one could find a number of wine-tasting courses in the vicinity. In fact, the boutique is a wine bar and a watch store, with a menu of wine-tasting courses and a watch store.
